The Rev. H. E. Merrill of Fairlee, one of the field secretaries of the New England Sabbath Protective league, was in town Saturday. He made plans to hold a union meeting here the first of January and to spend a week in his work.

There was no preaching service at the Cong'l church last Sunday, as the Rev. Fred Wilson Day had the misfortune to get his ankle quite badly hurt Friday night while at the railroad station, by an extra wide car striking the platform on which he was standing.

The regular meeting of Good Will grange Saturday evening was attended by a goodly number and much enjoyed by all. The program, in charge of Misses Emma Nye and Inez Bennett, was unusually good, consisting of music by Wyman's orchestra, and a piano and accordion duet by Mrs. Everett and Miss Green; Miss Leda Smith gave a recitation and there were readings by several others. At the next meeting, Mrs. H. H. Harrington will have charge of the entertainment.

Sullivan Maxham, who has been for a number of years engineer for H. H. Daniels, was taken to the retreat at Brattleboro last week. The loss of money was the cause of his trouble. It appears he signed with some friend who did business with the Windsor bank and last week he had it to pay.

The concert given by the Bethel band for the library was enjoyed by all. The attendance was large and all of townspeople. It was very evident there is a great interest here in this institution and the committee of ladies who single-handed have given so many hours of their valuable time are to be congratulated for the effort made to obtain a more suitable building than at present. Already the committee are receiving contributions from those who still remember the old town and no doubt the fund will grow, once started, from this time on. A bank account has been started. Let us hope that out of this honest effort a fund will grow that will enable us to see a building that will be not only a benefit but a credit and pleasure to all that have helped us.

The Practical Poultryman.

The practical poultryman of today studies the Poultry Food problem with as great care as the practical farmer does the question of fertilizers. He has found that it is profitable to do so. He bends all his energies toward inducing his hens to do their best work when eggs are highest.

That George F. Tanner of Springfield, Vt., has given careful attention to the matter of food for his hens is evident. He writes the manufacturer: "I believe that it is not only necessary to feed 'Page's Perfected Poultry Food' in winter and the molting season, but all the year round, although in smaller quantities in the summer months. I have never fed so much before as this season and have never had hens lay so well."

Anyone sending his address on a postal card to C. S. Page, Hyde Park, Vt., and mentioning this paper, will receive by mail free, postpaid, a sample package of "Page's Perfected Poultry Food."
